FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

JASON MULROONEY JOINS EDLINK TO EXPAND FEATURED PROVIDER NETWORK

Chicago, IL, August 19, 2010— EdLink is pleased to announce that Jason Mulrooney has joined the EdLink team to support its expanding Featured Provider Network (FPN). As Manager, Education Partnerships, Jason is responsible for growing the size and overall value of the network.

EdLink's FPN is the largest network of higher education institutions offering preferred tuition rates for companies. The expanding network includes more than sixty accredited providers of higher education from across the country—public, non-profit and for-profit—all focused on serving working adults with online and on-ground educational opportunities to achieve their career and personal goals.

"One of the most unique benefits of EdLink's Tuition Assistance Management Service is access to our FPN, because it can have a significant impact on a company's tuition assistance spend and contribute to career development for their employees. We are thrilled to have Jason on board to expand the FPN and enhance our partnerships with higher education," stated John Zappa, CEO of EdLink.

Jason comes to EdLink with a wealth of experience most recently at Verizon Communications for over 10 years in its Workforce Development and Strategic Sourcing groups.

EdLink, LLC is the largest provider of corporate tuition assistance services. EdLink provides complete tuition assistance management services to organizations — working with employers to gain more business value from tuition programs while minimizing the costs. EdLink is an independent company jointly created by two national non-profit leaders in education, the Council for Adult and Experiential Learning \(CAEL\) and ACT, Inc.
